

Notes 1

What is Markdown?

Markdown is a language created by John Gruber in 2004 so people could format text using a plain text editor. It makes adding elements like headers, lists, boldface, and italic to a document.

What is Git?

It's a program created by Linus Torvalds in 2005. It keeps track of the changes you make on your code. It is a cornerstone for Linux.

What is GitHub?

It's an open source website where creators store, share, and track changes to their computer code.

What is Slack?

It's a messaging and collaboration app designed for people in the workplace or outside of the workplace to have conversations.